“Praise the Lord. Sing to the Lord a new song, His praise in the assembly of the saints. Let Israel rejoice in their Maker, let the people of Zion be glad in their King. Let them praise His name with dancing and make music to him with tambourine and harp. For the Lord takes delight in his people; he crowns the humble with salvation. Let the saints rejoice in this honor and sing for joy on their beds. Psalm 149:1-5

Last fall I was sitting by a crackling fire, watching leaves and a bit of snow drifting down outside, and some pets who were inside. Domino was stretched out on the floor, eyes closed, soaking in the heat from the fire. Callie was on her back, pawing at the air, and trying to get us to play. And I felt delight. They weren't cleaning the house, serving the community, or running a business. They were simply being present and being themselves. And I delighted in them. It's the same feeling I get when watching a child sleep, or friends going about their day living, growing, and being who God created them to be.

Jesus was living out who he was created to be as the Son of God. When he was a young boy, he ate meals, and did chores and worked around the house. I bet he even played practical jokes on his family. When he was older, Jesus continued to do what he was called to do, growing in faith and his understanding of life and ministry. In Matthew 3:13-17, Jesus was baptized by John and began formal ministry to his community and to the world. And a voice from heaven said, “This is my Son, whom I love; with him I am well pleased.” Before Jesus even began his formal ministry, God delighted in him.

Sometimes it's easy to think, “Yeah, of course God was pleased with Jesus. Jesus was perfect!” We don't realize that God feels the same way towards us. Yet, when we look at the original words, the Greek word in Matthew for “well pleased” pointed to a Hebrew work in Isaiah and in Psalm 149 that is translated as “delight.” The way God felt about Jesus is the same way God felt about Israel and the same way God feels about us. God delights in us.

We can live in joy because God delights in us, before we “do” anything. God delights in us because we are His family through Jesus. God delights in us even when our bodies change, our living situations change, and what we can do changes. We are simply to come with what we have, and each day let our lights shine.
